PREFACE

THE collection here catalogued was bequeathed to the University by John Willis Clark, M.A., Registrary, formerly Fellow of Trinity College, in the following terms :

> "I bequeath to the Chancellor, Masters and Scholars of the University of Cambridge, to be placed in the University Library, all my books, pamphlets, manuscripts and collections of views and photographs relating to the Town, County, Colleges, or University of Cambridge, or to the University of Oxford, except such views as may be found framed and glazed and hanging on the walls of my house at the time of my decease, together with the manuscript of the Architectural History of Cambridge by the late Professor Willis, his notes and lecture diagrams, and the quarto volumes of extracts from College Account Books and other documents made by myself. And I wish that the Librarian shall be in no way fettered as regards the distribution of this collection (which I do not desire kept separate unless perfectly convenient), and that if any items of such collection shall be duplicates of works already in the Library the said Librarian shall be at liberty to sell or exchange them as he thinks proper. And I declare that notwithstanding the circumstance that these books, pamphlets and manuscripts are all recorded in a manuscript catalogue, in two volumes folio, it shall be in the absolute discretion of my Executors to determine the items which pass under this Bequest whether so recorded or not."
>
> (Cambridge University Reporter, 29 November 1910.)

It was accepted by Grace of the Senate, 3 December 1910 (Reporter, 6 December 1910).

The collection consists of upwards of ten thousand books, pamphlets, and pieces, relating for the most part to the University, and to a less extent to the Town and County, of Cambridge. Included, however, are a certain number of books which have no direct connection with Cambridge, e.g. books by Cambridge men on subjects unconnected with Cambridge, and books about other Universities, and about University education.

Mr Clark's interest in Cambridge literature began about the year 1860, when, at the suggestion of Dr Luard, he resolved to collect the long series of tracts issued in connection with Dr Richard Bentley's quarrels with Trinity College, and with his various other activities and controversies. Very soon, however, he became so much interested in his task that he enlarged his plan, and set about collecting Cambridge literature of all periods and upon every subject. As is well known he was specially interested in College architecture, and in tracing the growth of the collegiate system. This explains the presence of works, particularly a series of books about Oxford colleges, and another series relating to Eton, which at first sight seem to have no proper place in a Cambridge collection.

The principal sources of the collection were these : (1) An important Catalogue of tracts, etc., relating to Cambridgeshire was issued by A. R. Smith, of Soho Square, in 1878, and from this Mr Clark bought extensively. (2) The Rev. Stephen Parkinson, Fellow of St John's College (B.A. 1845, M.A. 1848), was in the habit of preserving all Cambridge papers which came into his hands ; his collection was acquired by Mr Clark, and filled numerous gaps in the long series of fly-sheets, programmes, proposals, etc., which is a particularly valuable feature of the Clark Collection (see the Catalogue, s.v. 'Cambridge Papers' and 'Fly-Sheets'). (3) Mr Henry Bradshaw, University Librarian, added many tracts to the collection ; and at the sale which followed his death in 1886 Mr Clark acquired many more Cambridge items. (4) Dr H. R. Luard, Registrary, who died in 1891, left Mr Clark his University pamphlets and Bentleiana. (5) In 1894 Mr Robert Bowes published his remarkable Catalogue of Cambridge Books, and a large number of the pieces there described found their way into the Cambridge collection at Scroope House. In addition to these main sources Mr Clark rarely missed an opportunity of securing any books which came within the scope of his collection wherever and whenever he happened to see them.

Mr Clark's main idea in forming the collection was to illustrate the history and development of Cambridge by means of its literature; he collected from an historical and biographical rather than from a bibliographical point of view. Most of the books of typographical interest which were originally included in his Cambridge collection he gave to the Library in 1902[1], in order that they might appear in Mr Sayle's Early English Printed Books in the University Library, Cambridge.

The present work is based on the manuscript catalogue referred to in Mr Clark's will. This was finished in 1897 by Mr Clark, assisted by Mr Alfred Rogers of the University Library. He always hoped to see it printed, but it was not until 1909 that any very definite steps were taken. Since then it has been revised throughout, and to a large extent recast with a view to publication. Each book or tract has been compared with its catalogue-entry, and a large number of additional cross-references and subject-headings have been introduced. The general plan for the printed Catalogue and the earlier part of the revision were made by Mr Clark and myself working together; but in 1910 his health broke down, and I was obliged to continue the work alone.

In form it is a dictionary catalogue, with authors and subjects in one alphabetical arrangement. The titles have been kept short; and the main purpose has been to give an idea of the historical value of the collection rather than bibliographical descriptions of the books which compose it. To this end the subject-headings have been made as complete as possible.

[1] See Report of the Library Syndicate for the year ending 31 December 1902 (Reporter, 23 June 1903). Mr Clark also gave a documentary history of the University Library, arranged by himself, in six folio volumes.

As has already been stated, the collection includes a certain number of books which have no very close connection with Cambridge; but in spite of this it has been treated as a Cambridge Collection, and the headings 'Cambridge' and 'University of Cambridge' have been reduced to a minimum. (See the notes under those headings in the Catalogue.)

In the University Library the Clark Collection has been incorporated with a smaller collection of similar books already preserved there; and the whole has been arranged in chronological order as a special class (Cam.), to which Cambridge literature of every description can in future be added as it appears, and in which gaps can be filled as occasion offers. The Clark books are distinguished by a book-plate and a special stamp.

The present Catalogue, which includes only those books which came to the University under Mr Clark's will, is published as a contribution towards that complete bibliography of Cambridge which has yet to be written, and as a memorial of one who was unwearying in his efforts to advance the interests of the University Library.

Considerable pains have been taken (in some cases without success) to discover the authors of the numerous anonymous publications included in the collection, and I take this opportunity of thanking the various Cambridge publishers and booksellers to whom I have applied for information concerning some of the more recent publications of the kind.

My best thanks are also due to Mr Francis Jenkinson, University Librarian, and to Mr H. G. Aldis, Secretary of the University Library, who have read the proof-sheets of the Catalogue, and given me much help and encouragement throughout; to Mr Robert Bowes, who has placed at my disposal his unrivalled knowledge of Cambridge literature, and to whose Catalogue of Cambridge Books I have constantly referred; to Mr A. H. Cook, my colleague in the Acton Library, who has read all the proofs with particular care, and saved me from many errors and inconsistencies; to Mr Charles Sayle, Assistant Under Librarian, for allowing me to make use of his list of the manuscripts received under the Clark bequest in drawing up Appendix I; and to the Syndics of the University Press for the loan of the block (originally made for Mr Clark's Care of Books) from which the frontispiece is taken.

PROLUSIONES.

Greek Ode; Latin Ode; Greek Epigram; Latin Epigram (= Sir William Browne's Medals). Porson Prize (from 1817). 1796–1826

Sir William Browne's Medals were first adjudged in 1775. The successful exercises in that and succeeding years were written out by the prizemen themselves in a series of folio volumes preserved in the Registry. The printing of exercises depended at first on the pleasure of the prizeman. The above series is not quite continuous. The names of the successful candidates, in each year, for the various prizes here mentioned will be found in the Cambridge University Calendar.

Chancellor's English Medal. 1813–1826

Both the above series were then merged in :

PROLUSIONES.

Prolusiones Academicae praemiis annuis dignatae et in Curia Cantabrigiensi recitatae Comitiis Maximis A.D. 1827(–1829, 1831–1910). 1827–1910

The contents of each yearly volume are as follows:

Chancellor's English Medal.
Camden Medal (1841–66).
Greek Ode; Latin Ode; Greek Epigram; Latin Epigram (= Sir William Browne's Medals).
Powis Medal (from 1867).
Porson Prize.

Prolusiones [as above] A.D. 1830 (1832, 1833). 1830–3

In 1830 an enlarged edition of the Prolusiones was published which contained, besides the usual exercises, the Members' Latin Essay Prizes. In 1832 and 1833 editions were published containing the Members' Latin Essay Prizes only.

II. PRINTS AND DRAWINGS

In addition to the books and papers here described Mr Clark left to the University a collection of prints and drawings of the University, Town, and County of Cambridge. Besides topographical engravings and plans the collection includes a series of original pencil sketches by George Nicholson (1816); architectural drawings by Professor Willis; and photographs of University ceremonies.

It is hoped that these may be fully described in a projected comprehensive Catalogue of Cambridge Prints and Plans.
